Research and Projects

Naasa Travel

UX Research Project / School Project / Figma

- Conducted an end-to-end UX design process for a travel planning app, including user research, competitive analysis, affinity mapping, and task flow development over a 2-week project

- Synthesized insights from user interviews and surveys to identify key pain points, including time-consuming trip planning and lack of personalized itinerary support
- Designed wireframes, UI screens, and an interactive prototype in Figma, incorporating usability testing feedback to refine navigation and improve access to core features

NPR News

UX/UI Design Project / School Project / Figma

- Conducted UX research for a news personalization feature concept, exploring how users can receive more relevant and trustworthy news content aligned with their interests
- Led user interviews and competitive analysis (C-SPAN, NYT, PBS, Twitter) to identify key pain points around lack of personalization and declining trust in news sources
- Designed a community-based feature concept in Figma, including user flows and task flows, and validated usability through user testing with positive feedback on improved content relevance
